

Pastor Profile

The Pastor Search Committee of Saints Delight Church has solicited the help of its congregants to assist in understanding the kind of person that we desire as our next pastor. We have been engaged in meaningful conversations that are filled with a little trepidation, yet much anticipation and excitement.

Saints Delight is searching for a pastor who preaches and teaches sound doctrine, with the understanding that the Bible is inerrant and the authority by which we govern our lives. Our next pastor should agree with our Declaration of Faith. Our desire is that our pastor is constantly growing in their faith and is being transformed by the Word of God to be conformed to the image of Christ. We desire that our pastor have great knowledge of the Bible and is firm in their conviction and relational in their delivery of the word.

Our next pastor will be easily approachable; someone skilled in building relationships with the congregation, among the congregation and within the community. They will be a people-person who genuinely loves people and loves God, above all else. They know how to lead the staff with a team-based approach, stewarding in excellence the office of pastor for all matters that require their final say. Our next pastor will value the knowledge and insight of the members and not be partial to any one person or group of people, while neglecting others. They will be a person of prayer who makes biblical decisions concerning the direction of the church and will communicate that with wisdom and grace.

If our next pastor is married, we understand that their first ministry is to their family, but not at the neglect of their leadership to the church and their pastoral duties and responsibilities. Our next pastor's home life should be a godly model for others to follow.
